THE WRONG MAN ARRAIGNED.

John Adams, an ex-convict, was arrested by Independent Detective Wren as the third man of the party of burglars-the man who had been allowed to escape. Adams was brought before Police-Justice White, and one or two witnesses swore positively that he was the missing man. Being so positively identified, Police-Justice the W. H. Godsey connected with the White sent Adams on to the grand jury for indictment as an accomplice of Holmes and Jackson in the attempted robbery. Adams was duly indicted and put upon trial before Judge Guigon. There he was soon able to prove his innocence of the charge, and was honorably discharged, the Commonwealth's letter to Mayor Carrington in relation to Fish.—The fish market is dull, with the this case, said that the whole affair looked like "a put-up job."

Stirring speeches were made by Governor Walker, Mayor Chiles, Colonel A. C. Atkinson, Colonel Berkeley, and B. A. Hancock. Governor Walker made an excellent speech, and satisfied his hearers that Tilden, Hendricks, and Walker were the candidates to elect at the approaching election. The day passed in the most happy manner.

A large table was set in the grove, and plenty of refreshments were served to the assemblage.

audience with a speech well interlarded with humor, solid argument, and patriotic entiment. Colonel Timothy O'Brien then took the stand and made one of his characteristic speeches.

Speeches were also made by Captain Charles F. Taylor, Mr. James P. Cowardin, Captain Sam. Maccubbin, and others, when the meeting adjourned. The Richmond boys then formed a line and marched over the bridge to the music of Kessnich's band; and after reaching the RADICAL MEETING .- A small number of the friends of Hayes, Wheeler, and Mills gathered together near the corner of Ninth and Byrd streets Saturday night. Three speeches were made.

A TOUCHING INCIDENT .- On Saturday morning a solitary son of Erin was wending his way through the Capitol Square, and as he reached the Jackson monument he paused, and seemed for a few moments to be deciphering the inscription upon its base. He took his baggage-pack from his shoulders, laid it upon the ground, and looked around as though to see if any one were in sight. He could see no one, though he was not aware that his movements were watched by one of the capitol clerks from a basement window. Suddenly he dropped upon his knees in front of the monu-HUMOROUS READINGS BY PROFESSOR READE | ment, blessed himself, and bent his head as though in prayer. He continued this posture some four or five minutes. Capitol Policeman Drinkard came "Mickey" with some curiosity. After he proached him, and asked him kindly what he was doing kneeling there. He replied: Sure, an' that man was my Gineral, and many's the hard march an' fight I've had wid him. I didn't know before that yez down, and fling up a few prayers for the ould man." He bowed reverently towards

Action of the Irish Republican Club in Reference to the Irish Conservative Address to Foreign-Born Citi-ROOMS OF THE I. M., H. AND W. R. CLUB, RICHMOND, VA., October 19, 1876.

Gentlemen,-In a recent issue of your words which passed between Messrs, George D. Wise and John Lyon during the examination of T. K. Lyon in the Police Court on Friday, Acting Police-Justice Crutching for Anderson Coleman, and Coleman got them from a colored girl who lived at Reilly's. There was some little jealousy between Gray and Beach as to whom belonged the good of the general ge

To the Editors Dispatch:

Mr. Hayes is not and never was, cornected with any secret or oath-bound society, much less with the Know-Nothing organization. His past record bears us out on this point. And does not the most brilliant German foreign-born citizen in America to-day stand by me, too—viz., Carl Schurz? We have thus far noticed this address of Mr. Keiley in simple justice to Mr. Hayes and my fellow-countrymen. What we ask is that the facts in the case be not misstated. We all love justice and fair play, and we ask nothing more of Mr. Keiley. And when R. B. Hayes is President of these United States, as he undoubt-edly will be, the foreign-born citizens will find in him as true and as good a friend as

General John E. Mulford. Editors Dispatch: Gentlemen, -- More than two weeks since some friends suggested that my reference to the Republican ollectors of this district, when denouncing the profligacy of this Administration, might be construed to include General John E. Mulford-albeit he is well known as a Democrat-inasmuch as the word "Repubican" was not used. I at once wrote (October 3d) to General Mulford in New York, disclaiming such a purpose, and professing my desire to make that disclaimer as public as he desired. I am just in receipt of his answer, remitting to my own sense of what is appropriate the mode of making the correction, and take, therefore, this method of saying that nothing was further from my thoughts than to impugn the honesty of John E. Mulford, who, whether as enemy

The Street-Grading.—Your reporter has frequently made allusion to the streetgrading now in progress, but he dared not allude to the many differences of opinion that existed among our good people. Had he done so, the Chief of Police would have written to another paper that we did not know anything about the streets, and we would have been in hot water generally. Cuss me if you will, but don't do it outide o' my own bailiwick," was what Cap. Rix used to say. Therefore our lively neighbor, the Manchester Courier, could write with impunity an article upon the trials of a member of the Street Committee, from which I make the following lively ex-A few months ago, and all the citizens of the Free State cried aloud for street im-provements. Why don't the Council have the streets graded? was the universal cry. The city fathers, as faithful representatives of a complaining constituency, wrestled long and earnestly with the wisdom of the Street and Finance Committees, when, the justice to the ten-pin affey, all were smiles, hand of Colonel Edward Vickers seized the pick and shovel with zeal to accomplish the duties of contractor and consummate the will of the Council and the Coun will of the Council and the wishes of the dear people. By this time a sudden change comes over the spirit of the people. Those who were most clamorous for immediate street improvements, whose cries were like the war-hoop of the vindictive Modoc from his lava-beds-Why don't the Council grade the streets?-they now reverse the engine, throw open the throttlevalve, and cry long and loud: "What the devil are you digging up the streets for, ruining everybody's property, and converting our beautiful city into a vast mud-hole for the evolution and propagation of tadooles?" It would be emmently proper for the Street Committee to apply one force to open the streets and another to close them ip again. Then our citizens would be will pay the highest cash prices. pleased and everybody satisfied.
